In 2021, we published two sets of practical recommendations for companies. Why is a company's culture equally important to its strategy? How is a company's culture viewed by employees and what makes it responsible? Find out in the first set of recommendations, titled Building a Culture of Responsibility in the Company. The second set of recommendations, titled Virtual Volunteering, provides tips on how to help from home. All BLF recommendations are available for free at www.blf.sk.

Diversity Charter/BLF Relay 2: Women in Management, online

What obstacles prevent women from advancing their careers? Should there be gender quotas in management? These were some of the topics we discussed with our members Accenture, Plzeňský Prazdroj and Unilever. The event included a presentation of data about women in management and politics, a workshop focusing on the Lean methodology and the personal story of Katarína Navrátilová – the CEO of Tesco Czech Republic.

"We came to realize that if we really want things to change, we need to set specific goals. As soon as you've done that, the environment starts to change, allowing you to reach these goals."

NOVEMBER Diversity Charter:

Signing ceremony for new signatories, online

11 new signatories, including BLF member Whirlpool, joined the Diversity Charter. The discussion focused on single-parent families - what forms of aid they currently have at their disposal from the government and from the non-profit sector, as well as the ways employers can help.

November BLF Relay 3, online

We discussed the topic of measuring one's carbon footprint with environmental expert Viktor Třebický from the consulting company CI2. ESET, Plzeňský Prazdroj and Východoslovenská energetika Holding presented their experience.

December Member networking meeting, online

The end-of-the-year meeting of member companies also included a discussion about CSR in the company structure.

Ivana Vagaská Chief Executive Officer of BLF

"At Business Leaders Forum, we are convinced that responsibility is not some selfless thing done on top of conducting business, but rather that it's the driving force behind a stable economy and sustainable growth. We believe that responsibility towards people and the environment is what the so-called 'new normal' should be based on. In 2021, we updated our commitments for the following period and our members expressed their approval with these by signing the 2030 BLF Memorandum."

BLF & FOCUS survey:

How the Slovak public views corporate social responsibility (September 2021)

- 91% of the respondents think that in addition to focusing on making a profit, companies should have activities going beyond legal requirements.
- The most important activities of responsible companies include: healthy and safe working conditions (62%); honesty in business (54%); environmental protection (46%).
- As a priority, companies should focus on the following topics: environmental protection and mitigating the impact of climate change (54%); supporting education among the younger generation (45%); supporting people with disabilities or social disadvantages (42%).
- Important CSR criteria when choosing employers (provided that the starting salary meets expectations): employee benefits beyond legal requirements (64%); a friendly, respectful and open company atmosphere (51%); meaningful work in line with one's values (48%).
- As many as half of the respondents (54%) would be willing to pay extra for products that are a bit more expensive than regular products, but are produced in an environmentally friendly way or by people with disabilities or other disadvantages.
